Healthcare Innovations is a full-colour, tabloid-sized newspaper distributed with The Mail on Sunday and packed with tips and advice to help readers make positive changes to improve their health in 2018.

The publication will feature relevant editorial throughout, from health, fitness and beauty to private healthcare and specialist clinics for those with specific ailments.

Our health is often linked to happiness so it's understandable that many of us are keen to discover ways to improve it. Healthcare Innovations will look at topical issues, offering readers advice and tips on how to plan ahead.

Research shows that over 42% of readers of The Mail are aged 55 or above, with high disposable incomes. Many readers surveyed responded that they are particularly interested in health, and typically turn to The Mail first before any other source in this matter.

Many of these readers will be concerned about health problems as they approach old age, and are prepared to pay privately to receive the best care and medical attention, as well as discover the latest home innovations and gadgets to improve mobility.

Of course while many older readers will be interested in healthcare and mobility, others — young and old — will be keen to learn about the latest trends and innovations in diet, fitness, cosmetic treatments and alternative therapy. Healthcare Innovations will highlight these key areas, helping readers to stay healthy and happy throughout 2018.
